CCPA November 2024 Proposed Regulations: Cybersecurity Audits, ADMT and Privacy Risk Assessments

The California Consumer Privacy Act (CCPA) remains one of the most comprehensive privacy statutes in the United States. Final version of regulations implementing the CCPA (as amended by the CPRA) became final on March 29, 2023. However, the California Privacy Protection Agency (CPPA) is required to issue regulations that address the following topics: (i) cybersecurity audits; (ii) privacy risk assessments (PRA); and (iii) regulations governing access and opt-out requirements when a business uses “automated decision-making technology” (ADMT).

On November 22, 2024, the CPPA issued proposed regulations to address these requirements. While this is still only a proposal, the new requirements included in these proposed regulations could create significant new compliance burdens on many financial institutions. Please join us at the January Monthly Telephone Briefing where we will discuss the November 2024 Proposed Regulations in detail.
